Post Certification Services

Post-certification services are a critical aspect of the value that Pacific Certifications offers to its clients.

Once an organization has successfully achieved certification, the journey towards maintaining and continually improving its systems begins. Pacific Certifications provides robust support to ensure that the integrity and value of the certification are upheld over time.

Here are the key post-certification services offered by Pacific Certifications:

Surveillance Audits:

Pacific Certifications conducts regular surveillance audits to ensure that certified organizations maintain compliance with the standards for which they have been certified. These audits are essential for the ongoing validation of the practices and processes that form the basis of the certification.

Re-certification:

Certifications are typically valid for a set period, after which an organization must undergo a re-certification audit. Pacific Certifications assists organizations in preparing for these audits to ensure that they continue to meet the necessary standards without interruption.

Continuous Improvement:

Pacific Certifications encourages and supports continuous improvement by providing insights and feedback from audits. This service is designed to help organizations identify areas of their management systems that can be enhanced to achieve better performance and efficiency.

Training and Education:

To ensure that an organization's staff remains knowledgeable about the standards and can effectively implement and maintain the management system, Pacific Certifications offers training and educational resources. These may include workshops, seminars, and updated materials on the latest best practices and changes in standards.

Consultation Services:

Pacific Certifications offers consultation services to help organizations understand and navigate changes in standards, industry practices, or regulatory requirements. This ensures that organizations can adapt their management systems to evolving business landscapes.

Customer Support:

A dedicated customer support team is available to address any questions or concerns that may arise during the post-certification period. This team provides guidance and assistance to ensure that organizations can effectively manage their certifications.

Marketing Support:

Recognizing the marketing value of certification, Pacific Certifications may provide organizations with tools and guidance on how to promote their achievement. This can include the use of certification marks on promotional materials and advice on communicating the value of certification to stakeholders.

Feedback Mechanism:

Pacific Certifications establishes a feedback mechanism that allows certified organizations to provide input on the certification process and post-certification services. This feedback is used to continually improve the service offerings.

Organizations that have been certified by Pacific Certifications can expect a partnership that extends beyond the audit and certification process. The post-certification services are designed to ensure that the benefits of certification are maximized, providing a framework for sustained success and quality improvement. Verification, Compliance & Third-Party Auditing

Pacific Certifications offers a comprehensive suite of services that encompass verification, compliance, and third-party auditing, all of which are critical components for organizations seeking to uphold and demonstrate their adherence to international standards and regulatory requirements.

Verification: Verification services provided by Pacific Certifications involve a thorough examination of an organization's processes, systems, and documentation to ensure that they meet the specified standards. This process is essential for organizations that need to validate the accuracy of their claims regarding quality, environmental management, information security, and other aspects covered by the standards. Verification by Pacific Certifications serves as an independent confirmation that the organization's declarations are credible and based on solid evidence.

Compliance: Pacific Certifications assists organizations in navigating the complex landscape of regulations and standards, providing them with the expertise needed to understand and implement the necessary controls and processes. This helps organizations not only to avoid non-compliance risks but also to maintain a reputation for integrity and reliability in their respective industries.

Third-Party Auditing: Third-party audits provide an objective assessment of whether an organization's management systems are in accordance with the standards for which certification is sought. The benefits of third-party auditing include an unbiased review, identification of areas for improvement, and enhanced confidence from customers and stakeholders in the organization's commitment to quality and excellence.

The role of Pacific Certifications in these areas is to act as an impartial expert, providing insights and recommendations that help organizations to achieve and maintain high standards of practice. The process typically involves:

- Pre-audit assessment: Understanding the organization's current systems and practices and comparing them against the standards.
- Gap analysis: Identifying areas where the organization does not meet the standards and providing recommendations for improvement.
- Certification audit: Conducting a formal evaluation to determine if the organization is ready for certification.
- Issuance of certification: Providing a certificate if the organization meets the standards.
- Post-certification follow-up: Offering ongoing support to ensure that the organization continues to comply with the standards.

Organizations that are serious about their commitment to quality, safety, environmental sustainability, and other areas covered by the standards will find a reliable partner in Pacific Certifications. By engaging in verification, compliance, and third-party auditing, they can assure stakeholders of their dedication to best practices and continuous improvement.

Training (Awareness, Lead Auditor & Internal Auditor)

Pacific Certifications recognizes the pivotal role that knowledge and expertise play in the successful implementation and maintenance of management systems in accordance with international standards. To this end, Pacific Certifications offers a comprehensive training program that encompasses awareness, lead auditor, and internal auditor courses. These training modules are designed to equip individuals and organizations with the necessary skills to conduct effective audits and to foster a culture of continuous improvement within their management systems.

Awareness Training: Awareness training sessions are crucial for building a solid foundation of understanding across the organization and ensuring that all team members are aligned with the goals of the management system. Awareness training covers the purpose and benefits of the standard, the key requirements, and the roles and responsibilities of staff in maintaining compliance.

Lead Auditor Training: Lead auditor training is comprehensive, covering the audit cycle from planning to reporting and follow-up. Participants are taught how to manage an audit team, communicate with stakeholders, and assess an organization's compliance with the standard. Lead auditor training is essential for those who wish to conduct first-party (internal), second-party (supplier), and third-party (external) audits.

Internal Auditor Training: Internal auditor trainings are a requirement of management systems and are critical for the ongoing monitoring and improvement of the system. The training covers how to plan and perform audits, how to report findings, and how to follow up on corrective actions. Internal auditor training empowers participants to identify gaps in their organization's management system and to contribute to the continuous improvement of their processes.
